

Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

CHAS. M. MEACHAM, Editor.
TUESDAY, JULY 16, 1889.

HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY.

A live and growing city of 8,000 inhabitants, situated in a county of 4,000. The Louisville and Nashville has two lines of railroad in the county. The largest tobacco growing county in the world. Wheat, corn, hay, coal, live stock and fruit produced for export in large quantities. The city has four banks with an aggregate capital of $100,000. A planing mill and wagon factory, three carriage factories, nine factories, tobacco manufacturing, two foundries, three brick yards, broom factory, steam laundry, ice factory, two large flouring mills in the city and several in the county. Splendid driving park and fine opera house. Five turnpikes centering in Hopkinsville. Building and Loan Association, Commercial Club, a telephone exchange, numbered streets and houses and city lighted by gas. Macadamized streets and brick sidewalks all over the city. Eleven churches, two colleges, a high school and the finest system of public schools, white and colored, in the State. Western Kentucky Lunatic Asylum with a population of 600, two miles east of the city. A 108,000 court house with town clock in the dome. A fine fire department and a company of State Guards. Little River furnishes an adequate supply of water for all purposes. Real estate low and rents cheap. Fine opening for woolen mill, pork packing establishment, fruit cannery, tannery and many other enterprises. Climate mild and invigorating and exceedingly healthy.

Dr. Dulin and his colored opponent, Dr. Lillard, are making a very quiet race for Coroner.

A water spout twelve miles from Baltimore inundated a large territory and drowned several people Saturday.

The L. & N. has reduced its freight rates on the Nashville & Decatur division. A similar favor would be appreciated on this division.

Rep. Clark, the Republican candidate for representative, is making no speeches, but he is making a hog-path canvass of the county at a lively rate.

Katie Gore, a servant girl at Catlettsburg, Ky., jumped into the river to save a drowning child. The child was rescued at the cost of the brave girl's life. Her body was found two days later.

Blackburn, Brown, Buckner, McKenzie, McCreary and Durham are all on the stump for Sharp and there will be speaking in most of the county seats between now and the election.

Judge R. J. Breckenridge, of Danville, was married Thursday to Miss Lillie Morrison, Principal of the Danville Seminary. Judge Breckenridge is a brother of the Congressman and is a nominee for State Senator.

Montana's constitution-makers have a committee of eleven on irrigation. Some Kentuckian like George Dittus, who is an expert in irrigation, ought to go west and apply for the Chairmanship of this committee.

The annual encampment of the G. A. R. will be a failure this year because the railroads have refused to give a rate of one cent per mile. Interest in the encampments must be declining, or else the veterans are an impetuous class of travelers.

Wm. A. Hale, of Enos, Davless county, has ended the sensational scandal of last week by marrying Miss Nannie Jones, the young lady whom he seduced and afterwards furnished with strychnine for suicidal purposes.

Mrs. Julia Gardner Tyler, wife of the tenth President of the United States, died at Richmond, Va., last week, aged 63 years. She entered the White House a blushing bride of 24 years in 1844, being the second wife of President Tyler.

Col. John D. Morris and Nimian E. E. J., the latter now deceased, were Christian county members to the convention that framed the present state constitution in 1850. Upon the question of its adoption Christian cast 922 votes for and 511 against.

Jno. L. Sullivan did not pass through this city as reported. He was arrested and detained one day in Nashville, upon the authority of the Governor of Mississippi, and upon being released upon a writ of habeas corpus went north via Louisville.

Jno. W. Davis, the man who killed B. C. Evans, the well-known wholesale merchant of Fort Worth, Tex., on the 6th inst., was from Owensboro, Ky. He had been discharged by Evans for drunkenness. The dead man was one of the most prominent men of Fort Worth and the killing was an unprovoked murder.

Mrs. Mollie Corvin, a Shelbyville, Ind., widow who has been married and divorced eight times, was hatched with a hatchet and dangerously wounded by Chas. Suttles because she refused to accept him as her 9th husband. Suttles pleaded earnestly and finally succeeded in getting his lover's ear—by chopping it off with the hatchet.

Washington proposes to make a new and improved jury law. Grand juries will be composed of 15 members and 12 may return an indictment. Petit juries will have twelve jurors and nine may find a verdict. Under this kind of a law the litigant with a bad case would have to purchase four jurors to hang the jury, instead of only one as in Kentucky. The advantages of this new departure are readily seen, for there are rarely more than one or two contrary men on an average jury.

A MODERN CHRIST.

Wings For Judgment Day "Cornered." But He Sells Them at Five Dollars a Pair.

FAVANNAN, Ga., July 11.—Liberty County is greatly excited over the proceedings of a man calling himself Dupont Bell, who claims to be the new Messiah, and hails from Circleville, O. He is tall, slim individual, with long, black hair, and has succeeded in working the negroes of that section up to such a point that the white people are afraid of serious trouble. Senator Bradwell, who lives at Hinesville, has been kept informed as to the latest developments in the case.

"This man Bell," he said "appeared suddenly in Liberty County six weeks ago. He proclaimed himself to be the Son of God, and the negroes at once went mad over him. They deserted their fields to follow him and listen to his rantings, and now things are so bad that it is impossible to get hands on the plantations near Riceborough, and some of the crops are being ruined. The negroes kneel before him and struggle with each other for the privilege of kissing his feet. He has told them that the judgment will be here the 16th of August. He says that the white people have enjoyed their paradise on earth for the last eighteen centuries, and now it will be the black man's turn. On the eagerly looked for 16th every white man will be turned black and every black man will become white. This prospect can not be cheering to Bell, whose skin is white. He says his boy was born thirty years ago in Ohio, but his soul has lived since the world began. On the 28th of June he was arrested on the charge of vagrancy, but it was impossible to hold him on such a charge, as he had a quantity of money in his possession."

His schemes for raising money are varied and peculiar. The last effort of his genius was to declare that he had sent to his august Father for a consignment of wings, which the negroes will need on and after the 16th of August. There was a corner on wings when his requisition reached heaven and the Almighty was only able to send him 300 pairs. These, he claimed, in the meanwhile he would sell them at $5 a pair. Every pair has been bought and paid for and now the lucky ones are practicing the flying motions. He thinks his father may be able to send him a few more pairs before the great day.

LINCOLN'S RELIGION.

The forthcoming (August) number of the Century will contain a chapter on "Lincoln and the Churches" in the Lincoln History, by Messrs Hay and Nicolay, from which the following is an extract from advance sheets:

"He was a man of profound and intense religious feeling. We have no purpose of attempting to formulate his creed; we question if he himself ever did so. There have been swift witnesses who, judging from expressions uttered in his callow youth, have called him an atheist, and others who, with the most laudable intentions, have remembered improbable conversations which they bring forward to prove at his own intimacy with atheism. But leaving aside these apocryphal evidences, we have only to look at his authentic public and private utterances to see how deep and strong in all the latter part of his life was the current of his religious thought and emotion. He continually invited and appreciated, at their highest value, the prayers of good people. The pressure of the tremendous problems by which he was surrounded; the awful moral significance of the conflict in which he was the chief combatant; the overwhelming sense of personal responsibility; never left him for an hour—all contributed to produce, in a temperate, naturally serious and predisposed to a spiritual view of life and conduct, a sense of reverent acceptance of the guidance of a Superior Power. From that morning when, standing amid the falling snowflakes on the railway car at Springfield, he asked the prayers of his neighbors in those touching phrases whose echo rose that night in invocations from thousands of family altars, to the memorable hour when on the steps of the Capitol he humbled himself before his Creator in the sublime words of the second inaugural, there is not an expression known to have come from his lips or his pen but proves that he held himself answerable in every act of his career to a more august tribunal than any on earth. The fact that he was not a communicant of any church, and that he was singularly reserved in regard to his personal religious life, gives only the greater force to these striking proofs of his profound reverence and faith."

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Newport Story, a "Co-Ed."

Story, an Army Story, a Paris Exposition Story, a Story of "Two Jacks," a Story of Two Pilgrims, and some of the attractions of the Democratic Monthly Magazine for August, which makes it just such a number as everybody wants in the hot summer months. The articles also are of timely interest, including an account of the Paris Exposition, giving a view of the whole grounds; "In Central Park," beautifully illustrated in water-colors and in black-and-white; "The Pleasures and Pains of Amateur Photography," by Alexander Black, illustrated with numerous pictures taken by amateurs; "How to Prevent and Remove Wrinkles," the second in the series entitled "Aids to Beauty;" besides numerous other articles on subjects interesting in the family circle, including the health, happiness, amusement and decoration of the household; and there are over one hundred illustrations. In fact, the August number, which is just out, is a wonderful production, and worth many times its cost.

Mrs. Annie Pickett, widow of Gen. Geo. G. Pickett, who led the grandest charge of modern times at Gettysburg, will be married in the fall to Gen. Jas. C. Lynch, of Philadelphia. Gen. Lynch was colonel of the 106th Pennsylvania Regiment, forming a part of the Brigade that met Pickett's charge. When Gen. Pickett died some years ago, President Grant had him appointed a clerk in the Pension Bureau where she still remains. Last year she met Gen. Lynch upon the field of Gettysburg at the Blue and Grey reunion, upon the very spot where the famous charge was made. The acquaintance formed then has been followed up and will culminate in a wedding, which will be attended by all the surviving officers of Pickett's Division. Gen. Lynch is 57 and a well preserved widower. Mrs. Pickett is 50 and still a handsome woman.

It leads the field, is the universal verdict of the ladies in regard to Peterson's Magazine. It always comes laden with an atmosphere of elegance, and the fashions are as beautiful as they are sensible. The true secret of dress is to have pretty things at a moderate cost, and a glance at the August number will convince any woman that "Peterson" can teach her how to accomplish this. She will find also excellent stories, fine engravings and miscellaneous matter of the most varied and useful description. Every family should have this admirable periodical for a monthly visitor. It meets in all ways the tastes and needs of the entire household. "Peterson" is really a wonderful combination. Neither pains nor expense are spared and the result is that each of its numerous departments is always up to the highest standard of excellence. Address Peterson's Magazine, Philadelphia, Pa.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Mason has adopted a new rule in regard to the assignment of stockholders and gamblers. He will make the assignment himself hereafter, instead of intrusting that duty to Collectors as heretofore. He is also going to put the stockholders and gamblers on duty in districts other than those in which they reside or from which they are appointed. Those who have been counting on having permanent assignments in the large towns are not likely to be pleased with this new arrangement.

County Correspondence.

CROFTON, KY. Crofton, July 14.—Thursday morning Mr. Huston Hendrix and Miss Ida Cross eloped to Springfield, Tenn., and were married there that day. They were accompanied by his brother, Millard Hendrix, and Miss Ellen West, who witnessed the uniting of the two hearts. The young couple are yet in their "teens."

The groom is a son of Dr. A. A. Hendrix and the bride is an adopted daughter of John M. Cross, all of this place. We wish for them an unclouded future and that each day's work may find them closer together and when they have fought the great battle of this life may the Good Master say "well done."

Died July 9th, infant of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Hight.

Died July 11th, Mrs. Della Keith, of that dreadful destroyer of human life, consumption. She was a member of the Christian Church at this place and was a devout Christian, ever ready to do some one good and none evil. Loved by all who knew her, she leaves a husband, two children, father, mother, sister and brother to mourn their loss, while she stands on the battlements of heaven and beckons them on to join her in the life beyond, where there will be no more parting to them. We offer them our condolence.

STEPHEN GIRARD.

How the Philadelphia Philanthropist Disposed of His Vast Wealth.

One morning in May, 1776, the boom of a cannon startled the inhabitants of the vicinity of Delaware Bay, and looking seaward a merchant ship was discovered hovering to and fro, instead of the fleet of Admiral Howe, who, by command of His Royal Majesty King George III., was then blockading the rebellious coast. She proved to be the French merchantman L'Amable Louise, commanded by Captain Stephen Girard, a house from New Orleans to New York. The captain had lost his way in the fog, and had fired a gun for a pilot. He was informed that war was declared between Great Britain and the colonies and that if he continued his voyage to New York he would be captured and his ship and cargo lost. He was advised to bring his ship into Philadelphia, which he did; and to a day's dense fog this country is indebted for the greatest and noblest charity of modern times—the famous Girard College.

Stephen Girard was born near Bordeaux, France, May 20, 1759. When about fourteen years of age he incurred the displeasure of his father by a rude remark made to his stepmother, and rather than apologize he fled to sea, where he was captured and sold as a cabin boy and part owner. When a small child he lost the sight of his right eye while playing near a bonfire, and his biographers are of the opinion that this deformity was the cause of the moroseness of his character, and caused him to keep much to himself. With such asseiduity did he pursue his chosen profession that he became master of a ship when he was twenty-three years of age, before the French revolution broke out. He was the first of his first mercantile venture was to San Domingo in February, 1774, whence he proceeded in July to the then colony of New York. After trading for three years between New York, New Orleans and Port-au-Prince, he went to Philadelphia in May, 1781, and gave up the sea for a mercantile career. While he was engaged most successfully in the prosecution of an extensive trade the yellow-fever in its most malignant type broke out in Philadelphia, sweeping away one-sixth of its population. He obtained the right to establish a hospital for the sick, for which it seemed almost impossible to secure competent management, Girard devoted himself personally, fearless of all risks, to the care of the sick and the burial of the dead not only in the hospital, but in the city, supplying the poor sufferers with money and provisions. Two hundred children, made orphans by the ravages of the fever, were in a great measure thrown upon his care. On the dissolution of the Bank of the United States he instituted a fund for the relief of the poor. During the war of 1812 he rendered valuable service to the Government by placing at its disposal the resources of his bank at a time of difficulty and embarrassment, subscribing to a large loan which the Government had vainly sought to obtain during the war. In 1777 to Miss Mary Lund at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Philadelphia. He died December 20, 1831, aged eighty-one years. He was buried in the ground of the Roman Catholic Church, corner of Sixth and Spruce streets, December 30, 1831, and the 30th of September, 1851, his body was removed to the college and placed in the marble sarcophagus prepared for it.

After a busy life, which had been devoted mainly to the amelioration of the sorrows of the distressed; and having given to his surviving relatives nearly $1,000,000, he left behind him a large and charitable institutions upward of $1,000,000; to the city of Philadelphia $500,000, to be expended in sanitary purposes and improvements; to the State of Pennsylvania $300,000 for her canals; he left the remainder of his property, worth about $6,000,000, for the erection and endowment of the noble college for orphans which bears his name.—Chicago Tribune.

WHAT SHE SHOULD DO.

If Fred should go off with another girl and Jilt Her.

They were talking of somebody who had been shamelessly jilted by a young man. A woman is never as hard on a young man for jilting a girl as on a girl for jilting a young man. "Fred, if you did that to me, if you went off with another girl, do you know what I would do?" "No, dear. What?" "I would simply get hold of you and tell you what I thought of you, and then I'd leave you and never speak to you again."

"Would you really do that?" "Yes, I—no, I don't think I would. I would despise you and have too great a contempt for you to take any notice of it at all or of you over after. If you think so little of me after all you've said you can not be the gentleman I thought you were."

"But, I say, dear, I haven't, you know, I haven't done any thing at all." "No, I know you haven't, but if you were, if I found that you were making love to another girl—I'd—no, I wouldn't—I'd just be as nice as I could to you—doubtless nice to you—and I'd make you so fond of me you couldn't live without me, and then I'd turn around and tell you I wanted nothing to do with you."

CREAM OF NEWS.

About Railroads.

The officials of the O. V. Railroad were in the city last week consulting with their attorneys, but did nothing towards submitting a new proposition. On the other hand, they have decided to go through the formality of moving for a re-hearing in the Court of Appeals, which is not to be assembled till September. This means that nothing will be expected before October or perhaps later. The Kentuckian does not look with favor upon this dilly-dallying. If we are to have another O. V. proposition it should be forthcoming at once, before some other proposition heads it off. The O. V. is the favorite line with our people and if it wants to come to Hopkinsville its officials should say so in time to prevent complications which may arise in the future. Until the fact is demonstrated that the O. V. is not coming our way, the Kentuckian is not willing to lose faith in it. Princeton, where there are two connecting lines, is the most desirable point for us to build a railroad. There can be no doubt of this.

A New Proposition.

The Kentucky and Tennessee Railroad was chartered by the Kentucky Legislature in 1871 and the company has been organized with A. H. Clark, President, A. V. Towne, Secretary, and H. C. Gant, S. C. Mercer, P. J. Brownell and M. D. Davis, directors. This company, in connection with a construction company, submitted a proposition to the City Council Saturday, at a called meeting. They propose to build a line of road from Hopkinsville to some point on the C. & O.—probably White Plains—for a $100,000 stock subscription from the city. The usual guarantees to be given as to freight rates and the like. Work is to be begun within 60 days from the time the aid is voted and the road to be completed in one year. In the event the road passes into the L. & N.'s hands the city's money is to be refunded. Bonds not to be issued until the road is in running order. The Council discussed the matter at length and postponed action until the next regular meeting.

Shot in The Shoulder.

Flem McElroy, col., was shot in the right shoulder by M. S. Perkins, last Friday morning in the rear of C. W. Driver & Co.'s grocery and saloon. The shooting was accidental. Mr. Perkins, who is a member of the firm, had been cleaning off his gun and as the work was completed McElroy and Mr. Driver, his partner, appeared in a friendly scuffle over a keg of beer, one of them calling him to lend his protection. He, thinking his gun was empty, drew it through the window as if to shoot when it was discharged. It was loaded with bird shot and only made a slight flesh wound. Mr. Perkins immediately gave himself up and was recognized in the sum of $100 for his appearance this morning.

A Dead Child Found.

The dead body of a mulatto male child was found in the river near Wolfe's Ford, south of town, Sunday morning. The child was newly born and had to all appearances been in the water a week. The body was too badly decomposed to tell whether any violence had been done, or whether or not it was born dead. Dr. Dulin, the county coroner, went to the scene yesterday and held an inquest, but failed to develop anything to solve the mystery. Suspicion rests on a mulatto girl in the vicinity, but there was no evidence brought forward and the further investigation of the affair will be referred to the county attorney.

A Bold Thief.

A bold thief entered the residence of Mrs. E. C. Phelps, on 18th street, Thursday afternoon, while Mrs. Phelps was lying down and stole from an adjoining room her pocket book containing $16 and a silver thimble. She had been down in town and lay down to rest, but was not asleep when the intruder made his entrance. The pocket book rifled of its contents, was left on the bureau.

DECORATION DAY.

Pythian Knights Honor the Memory of Their Departed Brethren.

The Decoration Day exercises of the Pythian Lodge K. of P. were conducted Thursday afternoon under the most favorable auspices. A rain during the day cooled the atmosphere to some extent and the evening was pleasant for summer. About 40 Knights marched out shortly after 5 o'clock accompanied by many friends in carriages, and the graves of all the deceased Knights buried in this city were decorated with flowers, the beautiful ceremonies being conducted by Chancellor Commander Bailey Walser. After prayer by Knight Walker and a hymn by the brethren, the address of the occasion was delivered by Knight G. M. Bell, as follows:

MR. BELL'S ADDRESS.

"Sir Knights, Ladies and Gentlemen: It is well for us in the rush of existence and the manifold cares and responsibilities which occupy our minds and absorb our attention to pause, and laying all aside devote a few minutes of each recurring year to the memory of those whom we have loved and lost.

We come to-day to heap with incense breathing flowers the seed which swells above the bosom of our dead; with sad faces and bowed hearts to pay to their memory 'the mournful tribute of a tear.' To show that new faces have not usurped their places in the hearts that were their own; to show that we cherish them as a sweet memorial which binds our hearts to the past even while our busy hands are building up the future.

One of the grandest principles of our grand order is to inculcate fraternal love and friendship, to inculcate mankind with the divine precept of universal brotherhood, to develop a love that ends not with the life of the loved one, but follows him with grief-stricken footsteps to his last resting place, and cherishes as tenderly those who sleep with nothing save the mossy mantle of old mother earth between their bosoms and the bending skies as they

"Whose ashes rest like sea shells on a whitemed strand as I pass, And smile here and there."

We come to-day to strew with impartial and undiscriminating hands the graves of all our dead. We ask not—have no right to ask—what was the position in this breathing world of him whose grave we decorate. Listening senators may have hung upon his tongue and the world have bowed before his commanding genius, yet at our hands he is not entitled to one flower more than the humblest knight who walked the obscurest path of life and died an honest man.

In the democracy of the Pythian heart all rank, loose difference and distinction. Was he a true and loyal Knight of Pythia is all we can ask and this question answered in the affirmative entitles him to the full measure of our love.

Since the day when the exterior surface of the earth was first spread by God as a shield between the eyes of the living and the faces of the dead has it been the custom to strew with flowers the spot where loved ones sleep. The flower from the earliest ages has been taken as typifying the life of man. "He cometh up as a flower and is cut down. He fleeth also as a shadow and continueth not."

"To-day he puts forth the tender leaves of hope; to-morrow blossoms and bears his blushing honors thick upon him; the third day comes a frost, a killing frost." Type of our ephemeral existence here on earth, could loving hands select a fitter tribute to the memory of our dead but forgotten friends?

Standing here surrounded by our departed members who have taken each, "his chamber in the silent halls of death," the melody of lips that are dust and of tongues upon which has fallen the eternal silence of the tomb, rises within our hearts, these sanctuaries of dim and tender memories, like the lingering cadence of some old refrain. We see them as we know them in the days that are gone and we know that they are by us and with us now, invisible witnesses of the love we feel and of which this act is but the outward symbol.

Let us remember them as we wish to be remembered. Let us cherish them as we wish to be cherished when we enter upon that tideless calm which they now enjoy and let us strew flowers upon them now as we would have the tender hands of those who come after us place tokens upon our own graves."

After the speech had been concluded the Knights marched from grave to grave each with a basket filled with flowers and each brother dropped a floral offering upon the graves of the departed brethren. After this ceremony they quietly dispersed.

AT NIGHT.

At 8 o'clock the Lodge held an open session and installed the five new officers whose terms begin in July. The Lodge room was crowded with ladies and other friends of the order. During the evening Miss Katie McDonald, Mrs. Vickers and Miss Fletcher each favored the Lodge and audience with a vocal solo. The creator of the evening was P. C. Jas. Breitheit, who delivered an appropriate and very eloquent speech of forty minutes upon the subject of "Pythianism." The length of the excellent address prevents us from giving it to our readers in full.

The officers then installed were C. E. Kennedy, C. C.; W. L. Thompson, V. C.; F. B. Waller, P. M.; D. M. Canaler, M. A.; O. A. Wynne, L.

G., and Jno. P. Campbell, O. G.

The installation ceremonies were conducted by P. C. A. D. Rodgers in the chair, Knight Curt. M. Bell, as G. M. at A. and Knight Jno. P. Campbell as O. G.

Are you waiting until they are all gone, and then console yourself with the belief that you did not need one in the first place.

Well, it is simply miraculous how the goods on our Bargain Counter disappear and still we have plenty left. If a man would offer you a $10 gold piece for $2 and you were certain it was not counterfeit you would think it cheap, even if you were afraid he had a string tied to it. Well, if we offer you a line of Clothes for $2.90, worth $15, and you are sure they are genuine and know a thing you would buy it. Well, if so, come right on down to our store, corner 9th and Main, and you will be surprised.

We are still at the same place and expect to be for many days to come. But we do not expect to carry any more clothing, therefore it must go.
